INDIA WATER EXPO 2011
April 28-30, 2011 at Chennai Trade Centre, Nandambakkam, Chennai

A major part of South India has harsh climate with intense monsoons followed by protracted droughts. This leads to irregular water supply through natural resources. Moreover, growing industrialization in the region has created disparities between the supply and demand of water. With South India becoming the most economically developed part of the country, demand for water is high. Intervention in the management of water and wastewater is thus necessitated.

The Southern water sector has seen tremendous developments on water and wastewater treatment over the past decade. The Indian Water Expo 2011 from April 28 - 30, 2011 at the Chennai Trade Centre, Chennai will showcase latest offerings in the market and help bridge knowledge gaps on water & wastewater management for users. As the most cost effective marketing platform for Key Indian Players, the Indian Water Expo 2011 ensures you reach your target customers in the South. Manufacturers specializing in water treatment, wastewater management and all other related industries can showcase and exhibit their products and expertise. With the support of EverythingAboutWater as its Knowledge Partner, the show is the best water event in South India in 2011.
